Computer Software Service Fraud

What is it?

Computer software service fraud or sometimes called remote access fraud involves the victim being contacted, told that there is a problem with their computer, and that for a fee this issue can be resolved. The fraudster wants to get remote access to the victim's computer and access their online banking account.

In 2021, Action Fraud received over 20,000 reports of people falling victim to Remote Access scams with losses totalling over £57m. To help protect yourself from falling victim to this type of fraud, always remember:

- A tech company, telecommunications provider, bank or service provider will never contact you out of the blue requesting remote access to your device.
- Only install software or grant remote access to your computer if you're asked by someone you know and trust, such as a friend or family member, and never because of an unsolicited call, browser pop up, or text message.
- Your bank will not ask you to reply to an e-mail with personal information, or details about your account. If you contact them, use a phone number/email address that you know to be true, rather than one sent to you in an email – it may be false.
- It is okay to reject, refuse or ignore requested. Only criminals will try to rush or panic you.

If you think that you may have been a victim of this type of scam, then contact your Bank immediately and report it to Action Fraud at www.actionfraud.police.uk or calling 0300 123 2040.
